

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT'S FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ADVISORY BOARD

August 8, 1974

Dear Bill:

[redacted] sent me a copy of an analytical essay which he prepared in June, entitled "What's Wrong with Political Europe?" The essay analyzes the recent rapid turnover in Western European governments, and based on this analysis outlines some implications for U. S. [redacted]

While the paper may be too long to gain readership at very high policy levels, it is the kind of provocative think-piece which can go a long way towards ameliorating the kind of analytical mind-set which the Board members have frequently discussed with you.

I sent a copy to Governor Rockefeller and have just received a most appreciative note in which he inquires whether there are not similar perceptive essays for other regions of the world.

Regards,

Wheaton
